OF OUR
GRAND
SPRING
INAUGURAL!

This is the supreme fashion-event of the season! It is a comprehensive exhibit of the Spring garment styles originated and sanctioned by New York fashion authorities, and as such it has won the admiration and praise of hundreds of women who have attended it.

If you haven't already inspected this splendid inaugural display, we extend a cordial invitation to you to come tomorrow. You will be left at leisure to examine the styles and inspect the various garments, and no one will press you to purchase.

We are frankly desirous to have you inspect this inaugural display because we know it will be of deepest interest to you and of benefit to ourselves. So we hope you'll come tomorrow prepared to spend at least several hours examining this lovely new spring apparel.

SOCIAL

Brotherhood Social.
The Methodist Brotherhood social held last night in the social rooms of the First Methodist Episcopal church was a great success.

About one hundred men assembled and after a hearty welcome address by President John Sopher and Pastor G. D. Smith, "get acquainted" cards were distributed to each man present and a general good time was had.

Sandwiches and coffee were served, while the orchestra rendered several numbers, after which the gymnasium was inspected.

This was the first social session to be held since the opening banquet and those in charge will furnish something bigger and better for the next one. Several new members were enlisted and it is hoped that at the April meeting the five hundred mark will be reached.

brown donkey and a purple elephant. President Wilson's voice at first failed to carry into the crowd but as he raised it he secured close attention and which he held throughout his address. "O, isn't it wonderful," said Mrs. Wilson, as she looked over the immense gathering that extended so far that faces were not recognizable.

During the morning Mr. Wilson made a call on President Taft at the White House and after a chat the ride to the capitol was begun. The streets were packed as the escort moved down Pennsylvania avenue, but in marked contrast to yesterday's suffragette pageant the carriage was clear.

Three hours before the ceremonies the entire east front of the capitol was packed with crowds. Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning W. J. Bryan called on Mr. Wilson at his hotel and after a conference Mr. Wilson announced that he had been informed by the congressional leaders that business of the extra session would be ready by April 1, though the date was subject to change.

Upon arriving at the capitol President Taft and Mr. Wilson were escorted to the presidential room where Mr. Taft at once took up the signing of bills. The party remained until Congress completed its last bit of work and was ready for the inaugural ceremonies.

When President Taft and Mr. Wilson passed into the president's room, Mr. Taft spied Mr. Bryan in the corridor and invited him in. "I do not know whether I can come in or not. I am not the president," said Mr. Bryan. "Well I am still president and I invite you in," said Mr. Taft. In the meantime Wilson's family were assembled in the Senate gallery, but neither Mrs. Taft nor any of the family occupied the seats reserved for them.

When Mr. Marshall was escorted into the senate chamber Mrs. Marshall waved to him from the gallery where she sat. William S. Bryan was the first man to shake hands with the new president. He then shook hands with Mr. Taft. The party then prepared to head the procession back to the White House starting at 1:45 p. m.

—Some new fashion is revealed in its loveliest form. Some show the influence of the East, others are copies of foreign models, while still others with a smartness in cloth and tailoring that is truly American.

Certain features in trimmings are decidedly noticeable for their utter disregard of previous styles—and when have skirts been so pronounced in individuality? Shepherd checks are prominent, Bedford Cords have been received; Novelty Cloths, Brocades, Eponge and Bengaline Silks are to the fore. And Srges and Reys are good.

These in tan mode, soft new browns, navy and black afford to choose from.

Prices $25 to $40—Specials, $10.50 and $14.50.

"The Corset Makes the Figure"— Redfern

Assuming that your aim is to be corsetted for either the fashions of the day or your individual taste in dress—a Redfern is your model—soft, light and pliant, yielding to every demand of the wearer.

The contour of the coming season's figure gives the effect of the natural waist—with long lines and slightly curved but closely confined hip.

The new REDFERN for Spring arrived yesterday; $3.50 to $15.00 a pair.
